

ITEM	ARTIST	TITLE	MEDIUM	INSPIRATION
1	Michael Askew	Shiprock Storm	Photography	Shiprock is a sacred Navajo site in New Mexico and often has heavy thunderstorms during the summer "monsoons".
2	Michael Askew	Canyonlands Storm	Photography	Canyonlands National Park in Utah has vast vistas and rock formations, arches, and is the confluence of the Green and Colorado rivers.
3	Michael Askew	Morgan River Storm Clouds	Photography	Captured on a stormy morning at the Dataw marina. Lots of drama in the skies. It was raining hard across the river, but not at the marina.
4	Lynn Baker	Maelstrom	Mixed media - Linocut with collage	This print was produced from my hand-carved rubber block. The mono printed paper pieces were added using a technique called Chine Colle.
5	Pat Blumer	Sunny Disposition	Mixed media - watercolor pencil and ink	Part of a series of "sunny studies"
6	Liza Boyajian	Savannah Riverfront - Before The Storm	Photography	I took this photo in December 2024 on a visit to the Christmas Market in Savannah. There was no rain in the forecast. Saw the clouds and a few minutes later the sky opened up and a heavy rain began.
7	Liza Boyajian	Frozen Night	Mixed Media	Mixed Media winter-themed landscape collage created with hand-decorated and gel printed papers, pens, paint and other media.
8	Harold Burnley	Morgan River Landing	Photography	This image is the essence of Dataw's waterfront photographed at Twilight. Who would not want to live here?
9	Harold Burnley	Hunter's Dream	Photography	A composite of several of my images were used to create this seamless work of a hunting scene. near my Virginia home.
10	Harold Burnley	Kamp's Farm	Photography	This image is a composite of several of my photos and a background created with Photoshop brushes.
11	Barbara Carakostas	Storm Brewing	Collage
12	Barbara Carakostas	Winter Solace	Mixed Media
13	Anne Clements	Storm Over	Oil
14	Anne Clements	It's Cold Out There	Oil	Inspiration by glorious Hubbard Glacier
15	Anne Clements	Dancing Kites	Oil	Hong Kong Chinese kites were originally made from whittled strips of wood and silk; today the silk has been replaced with a light polyester. They can be folded and put away as they are quite large with wingspans of four feet or more. They float and dance in the wind with their lightness. A beautiful site on a windy day!

16	Marie Doyon	Skies are clear; ready for lift off	Pastel	My inspiration was a photo I took of an egret taking flight from the marsh in my backyard on Jenkins Creek.
17	Marie Doyon	Behind the Clouds	Acrylic	Behind the clouds is the sun still shining by Longfellow
18	Susan Emons	Storm Over The Sound	Pastels	Our vista is always dynamic!
19	Jennifer Ethier	After the storm	Watercolor	An abstract vision after a hurricane when the boats are tossed around.
20	Jennifer Ethier	Rainforest	Mixed media	Keep our rainforests safe.
21	Dick Golobic	Storm Over Hells Canyon	Photography	Even without storm clouds overhead, Hells Canyon is rugged-looking terrain. The canyon was created by the Snake River between Oregon and Idaho. This is one of the few times I have altered a photo with a major change. Here I put in a sky that just seemed to fit.
23	Marcea Gustafson-Belletete	Fire & Ice	Photography	I love the colors in this picture of clouds, taken in Peterborough, NH, in July 2020. The sunset illuminated the sky beautifully, creating a stunning display that captivates my heart.
24	Marcea Gustafson-Belletete	Cumulus	Photography	My husband, a pilot, and I often find ourselves soaring among the clouds. This photo captures an August afternoon over New Jersey as we flew north from Raleigh, NC. Throughout the day, cumulus clouds built up, creating a stunning display that took my breath away.
25	Marcea Gustafson-Belletete	Mud Pond at Dusk	Photography	Following a recent storm, the sunset in Dublin, NH, was stunning, showcasing vibrant colors that lit up the evening sky. This breathtaking scene was captured in July 2020, reflecting the beauty that can emerge after a storm.
26	Marcea Gustafson-Belletete	Providenciales	Photography	The weather in the Turks and Caicos is excellent. The water feels warm, similar to bath water, and its blue color is stunning. When flying between islands, you can see the water's depth based on its color. Turquoise indicates shallow areas, while deep blue shows greater depths. The sky also displays a beautiful shade of blue. It's a perfect destination for anyone looking to enjoy a tropical getaway.

27	Marcea Gustafson-Belletete	Co-Pilot's View	Photography	My husband is a pilot, so I have the opportunity and privilege of seeing the world from a different perspective than most, and some of the most beautiful sunsets. This night, we were flying over the Atlantic near New York City.
28	Marcea Gustafson-Belletete	Oh, What a Night!	Photography	In the summer, I live on a pond in New Hampshire. Summer evenings on the pond can be amazing! This was one of those nights.
29	Betty Johnson	Pine-tastic Peaks in Tahoe	Photograph printed on metal	2024 Winter Storm in Lake Tahoe
30	Betty Johnson	Reykjavik's Veil	Photograph printed on metal	Clouds rolling in from hills surrounding the harbor in Reykjavik, Iceland
31	Judith Ludwig	Dog Days of Summer	Watercolor	Louise, our French Bulldog enjoys a cold beer in the heat of our South Carolina summers!
32	Judith Ludwig	Winter Hike	Watercolor	Missing home (Michigan), one can still dream about a snowy hike...
33	Emily Mahoney	Decades of Weather	Photography	Our barn has seen decades of weather- if walls could talk!
34	Emily Mahoney	My Handsome Andrew	Photography	My beloved horse Andrew loves the snowy weather
35	Emily Mahoney	Winter Storm Wonderland	Photography	What a storm! The beauty of winter weather
36	Emily Mahoney	Winter Storm Clouds	Photography	Gorgeous winter weather storm warning clouds
37	Dale Martin	Scardy Weather Cat	Acrylic	THUNDER AND LIGHTENING SCARED THIS CAT
38	Dale Martin	Shape Shifter: Well! Blow Me Away	Acrylic	VISION OF SKINLESS BULL
39	Kathy McCall Head	Perfect Sailing Weather	Oil	My inspiration for this painting was a glorious full moon over Loch Lomond in Glencoe, Scotland!
40	Kathy McCall Head	Windy Spring Weather	Acrylic	These flowers were blowing in the wind on a mountain in North Carolina!
41	Sanford Morse		Photography
42	Dickie Odom	Did me some talkin' to the sun	Photography	When the sun came out the rain settled into multiple crystalline pockets adding an additional dimension to this already beautiful ornamental cabbage.
43	Dickie Odom	Rainbows and Vineyards	Photography	After a hailstorm at Villa Sagramoso Sacchetti in Verona, Italy this double rainbow touched down in the lane between two vineyards. After contemplating digging for gold, we opted for another glass of red.
44	Susie O'Toole	After The Storm	Oil

45	Mac Rogers	Sometimes, it Rains	Acrylic on canvas	While relaxing on the porch, enjoying the mountain view - a storm suddenly developed in the valley in the distance. I thought the rhododendron in the foreground contrasted nicely with the shower in the distance.
46	Alexis Schrimpf	A Snowy New Years Eve in Mt Adams	Pen and Ink	I saw this view from a friend's condo last NY Eve and I thought it was a unique view of an old neighborhood in Cincinnati, called Mt Adams. There was no snow but I thought that would make the winter scene more eerie and striking. The snow also causes a good deal of light reflection from the church spot light and street lights and horizon.
47	Alexis Schrimpf	After the Storm	Pen and Ink with a watercolor wash	The aftermath of storm has many effects but the destruction of a boat and dock has a certain quality to it that lingers long after the winds have stopped. I wanted to use pen and ink to create textures and the washed out color adds to the quality of being weather beaten.
48	Marcia Shaughnessy	Summer Birch Trees	Water Color
49	Bill Sloan	I Don't Think We're in Kansas Dataw Anymore...	Mixed Media (Wood, Fiber, Found Objects)	Given the weather (and other) events of the past year, and my own 'quirky' take on the show theme, I think the piece speaks for itself.  Note: The actual title should be: I Don't Think We're in Kansas Dataw Anymore... (The form doesn't support formatting in the response fields)
50	Andrew Smith	Split Second	Photography
51	Andrew Smith	In The Air	Photography
52	Becky Terry	The Storm	Photography	While taking a sunset cruise on the Salty Dog out of Lemon Island, we soon saw that the sunset was going to be blocked by the rain clouds - but it made for a dramatic photo.
53	Becky Terry	God's Sunrise	Photography	While studying my devotions one September morning, I paused to reflect on the verse, and when I looked up - this was my view. "Behold I stand at the door and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me" Revelations 3:20.
54	Bill Tremitiere	A Stormy Night	Acrylic	I wanted to challenge myself to paint a larger, dramatic image of weather that would be realistic and also have an abstract quality. I also wanted to create an unusual frame that would enhance the painting without drawing attention to the frame.

55	Bill Tremiere	After a Spring Shower	Water Media	I wanted to create a serene mood, as the morning shower passed, and would soon be followed by a sunny day.
56	Shelley Welch	Life's Seasons	Watercolor	Life in Michigan; backyard weeping cheery/spring, great blue heron/summer, local rails to trails/autumn, local park/winter
57	Paula Wexler	Rainy Day Zentangle	Pen and Ink	VAC theme inspired me to do the zentangle on a rainy day.
58	Susan Wilson	Neither Rain or Shine	Acrylic / mixed	nature beach
